

PASTORAL TRAINING FOR WOMEN IN END-OF-LIFE CARE

A UNIQUE 9-MONTH FELLOWSHIP

Ematai, an organization dedicated to supporting Jews through the complexities of aging and end-of-life care, invites women to apply for an intensive, text-based fellowship. This unique opportunity will equip you with the Torah knowledge and skills to provide individual support and communal leadership on the religious challenges of end-of-life care.

WHO SHOULD APPLY:

- Orthodox Jewish women residing in North America with a Torah learning background who are engaged in formal or informal community education or working in fields relating to end-of-life care.
- Able to commit 5-6 hours per week including sessions and preparation
- Passionate about learning Torah and serving the Jewish community

PROGRAM DETAILS:

- 2025-2026 academic year
- Weekly 2-hour live virtual learning sessions
- Sessions will alternate between traditional Torah learning and skill-building workshops
- Program taught by Rabbi Dr. Shlomo Brody and Rabbi Dr. Jason Weiner with guest lectures by leading rabbis and healthcare professionals
- Opportunities to write and speak about related topics
- Monthly stipend for program participants

Program Director: Rabbi Dr. Shlomo Brody, Ematai's executive director
Program Coordinator: Adina Blaustein

Questions? fellowship@ematai.org | Apply at: www.ematai.org/fellowship
Deadline for applications: May 28th | Rolling admissions - limited spots available

With gratitude to the Walder Foundation, Micah Philanthropies: Ann & Jeremy Pava, Trustees, Terri & Andrew Herenstein, and an anonymous foundation for their generous support of this initiative.